Grimsby Farm Service Force News & Views

Edited by —

Helen Dean, Phyllis Macpherson and Patricia Thompson

Well, here we are again and this time the camp quota has been increased to eighty. We wish to welcome the new girls and hope that their stay here will be a pleasant one. Although the girls have not been working these first few days, it has given them time to become acquainted with Grimsby and its surroundings. However, we wish to assure them a permanent position for the remainder of the season.

This week we are introducing two members of our staff, Miss Eva Carr Black and Miss Catherine Kepkey, who have rendered their services to make this branch of service a success.

Miss Eva Carr whose home is in Aylmer is a teacher in Toronto.

Miss Catherine Kepkey, a resident of London, is also a teacher in Toronto. She is interested in dramatics and art. She has lived in many cities in Canada.

On leaving they wish to express their feelings. "We have enjoyed ourselves immensely with a most congenial staff, and very co-operative girls". And we of the Farm Service Force wish to thank them for their readiness in helping to take part in interests other than their own and also for volunteering seven weeks of their vacation to help.

Concerning the previously mentioned wiener roast which was held last Saturday evening, in spite of the rainy weather and a cancelled baseball game. All enjoyed the program indoors planned by Miss Rose, who is the director of Physical training at Queen's University. The first part of the evening there were novelty games followed by ample refreshments, and topped off with a sing-song. Miss Annabelle Myers, on behalf of the farmettes, expressed her appreciation at the attendance of the committee and her gratitude to the growers who made transportation available to St. Catharines. Mr. James Walker, on behalf of the committee thanked the girls and expressed his appreciation for their sparseness toward farm life.

We hope in the near future to entertain all the growers. We wish to express our appreciation to Miss Rose, Miss Mathers and her helpers and to all those who made our evening a success.

We are all looking forward with great pleasure to the dance which will be held soon. Further details will be recorded in the next issue.

Cheerio for now.

Arnold Judd New Caretaker At High

Appointment of Arnold Judd as caretaker of the Grimsby High School was made at the meeting of the Board of Education held last evening. Three other applications were received for the post. Mr. Judd's duties, which will commence with the school year, carry a salary of $150 per year.

Other applicants for the position were received from Sam Hunt, Albert H. Ambrose and A. Hallman.

The board also approved a motion by Trustee C. D. Milliard, seconded by T. A. Sims, that the salary of S. J. Healey should be at the rate of $1,000 per annum. This rate goes into effect as of the present month.

Former Resident Passes Away

Mrs. Mary Rymal Sykes, who recently took place yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon in Queen's Lawn Cemetery, was well-known in Grimsby where she once lived; her husband, the late David Sykes, having been principal of Grimsby Public School forty-two years ago.

Born in Barton eighty-five years ago, Mrs. Sykes was the last surviving child of the late Joseph Rymal, M.P. for Wentworth. She had made her home in Hamilton some time, and was a member of Emmanuel United Church.

CURFEW SHALL NOT RING HERE

Action to enforce the provisions of the Children's Protection Act was strongly advocated by members of the Grimsby Board of Education at last night's meeting held in the public school during a discussion which arose from the reading of a letter received from the senior solicitor of the attorney general's department.

The letter was in reply to one which the board directed secretary E. J. Muir to write asking if there were not some curfew law which could be enforced. In his letter, Mr. Muir was instructed to outline the local situation as it pertained to juvenile problems. In reply, the department official merely outlined the provisions of the Children's Protection Act, which provides for fines for parents whose children are out alone or unaccompanied after 9 o'clock in the evening.

Several members of the Board advocated some action which would make the provisions of the act hold. Trustee R. O. Smith suggested that the town should enforce the regulations, while Trustees William Hewson and T. A. Sims declared that "teeth" should be put in the law which would result in fines for the parents whose children are found out late at night without proper supervision or reason. Mr. Sims pointed out that the nine o'clock curfew was being enforced in other municipalities, and he stated that Grimsby should pass a by-law which would apply the penalty provided for by the Children's Protection Act. In the end, however, no action was taken.

CAPT. JONES' MAIN STREET HOME IS SOLD

Owing to the prospect of a long war and the acute shortage of homes, Dr. C. Lloyd Jones, at present an officer in the Canadian Army Dental Corps, has sold his home at 86 Main St. East. The purchaser, Dr. G. F. Mitchell, of Timmins, took possession this week.

In announcing the sale, Dr. Jones said that he regretted leaving Grimsby, to which he and Mrs. Jones came four years ago. During their time here both Dr. and Mrs. Jones took a keen interest in the affairs of the community, and their home was a popular gathering place for a host of friends. They spoke feelingly of the many kindnesses which they have received at the hands of citizens here.

Dr. Jones, who holds the rank of Captain, is at present stationed in Manning Pool, "Vronto", where he is attached to the Royal Canadian Air Force. He joined the service last Easter. Prior to leaving his practice, Dr. Jones donated one of the first mobile dental units to be built in Canada.

Dr. Mitchell, who is a general practitioner, has been a resident of Timmins for the past twenty years. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto.

Softball Playoffs Start On Monday

Manager Clarence Rushion of the Peach Kings Softball team has his boys in tip top shape for the playoffs which will get under way next Monday night at the school grounds.

Last night they played an exhibition game at Brantford against a senior team and lost out by a close score of 5-5. Manager Rushion was of the opinion that had his team been used to playing under flood lights they could have taken the Bell City team.

This coming Monday the Kings meet the Eastdale team here with the return match on Wednesday evening. If a third game is required it will be played on Friday night.

The winners of this series will meet a team from St. Mary's on Monday night, August 26th.

All games in the playoffs will commence at 8:45. A benefit game will be played tomorrow night (Friday) at the Public School grounds in aid of a Wizaria player who was injured.

FLASH!

MONTRÉAL MAN DROWNED AT MAPLE AVENUE BEACH

FLASH.—At ten minutes to three Dr. A. F. McIntyre pronounced life extinct.

While swimming with his daughter Marilyn in the lake adjacent to his cottage near the foot of Maple Avenue, Cecil V. Thompson, Montreal, suffered a seizure and was nearly drowned. The stricken man was pulled from the water by his daughter, who shouted for help at the same time. Mrs. Thompson assisted in bringing her husband to shore, and called Dr. J. H. MacMillan.

A call was put through to Stoney Creek which resulted in Chief G. R. Depew and members of the Stoney Creek fire department rushing to the scene with an inhalator and first-aid equipment. At the time of writing—2 p.m.—they had been working for over an hour and a half in an attempt to restore breathing. Dr. A. F. McIntyre, who took over from Dr. MacMillan at 12:30, stated that chances of recovery, while slim, still existed.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and daughter were staying with Mr. Thompson's sister at the R. Harvey cottages, just east of Hand's fishing shack.

Mr. Thompson was secretary-treasurer of the Eastern Dairies Limited, and was well-known in eastern Canadian business circles.

Members of the Stoney Creek fire department, who answered the call, arrived at the beach, where Mr. Thompson's body had been brought to the shore. In relays, they worked for a period of nearly two and a half hours, while Dr. McIntyre continued to apply stimulants intervenously. For awhile it appeared that these injections might help, for, according to the doctor, this type of injection is harder to successfully accomplish than the intramuscular type.

Rev. M. N. Omand, of North Bay, one of the first on the scene after Mrs. Thompson and Marilyn had brought Mr. Thompson ashore, supplied the firemen with hot coffee and sandwiches, as did other cottagers living nearby.

With Chief Depew were the following firemen: Tom Boden, Charles Boden, Dick Millen, William Stewart, Garrett Luey and William Woodliff. Constable Ferguson also accompanied the firemen.

We read with interest a report of a Women's Institute meeting where Grandmother's Day was being observed, and several of them were asked to discuss things as they are to-day and as they used to be at their earliest recollection. One lady of 92 years who is able to "do things" around the house yet declared the greatest advance had been the coming of the electric iron. Her way of stating the case was:

"I have seen a great many changes and yet there are a few things I prefer doing for myself. Up until a few years ago I always saved the good wool ashes out . . . the kitchen range and ran a leach for the making of my own soft soap. But I would not want to go back to the old days of ironing again and the things we used to do. Ironing on lot 4, concession 12, was all that the grandmother of '92 said it was. Grandfather was as unyielding about the stiff front as was the stiff front itself. With a collar of equal stiffness wrapped about his neck grandfather went forth on Sunday morning to face the world and the preacher with his chin up. The truth probably was the subject of the same sort of treatment as was the starched shirt.

Public School To Open September 2 If Repairs Ended

SCOUTS HELD WEEK'S CAMP

Many Boys Passed Tests During Outing—Visit To Dunnville Was a Highlight — 25 Went From Grimsby.

The First Grimsby Lions Boy Scout Troop returned to Grimsby last Saturday after what all the boys declare to have been a most successful camping period on the shores of Lake Erie. They were under the direction of the Scout Master, James W. Baker, and shared the camp facilities with the Beaminville troop. Twenty-five members of the Grimsby troop were camped, while eighteen travelled with the Beaminville contingent.

Pitching their tents was the first job which the boys had on their arrival Saturday morning. Each patrol was responsible for its own tent. Arranging for camp fires and meals kept them busy for several hours.

Sunday morning, their first in camp, started with reveille at six thirty. A "wash parade" to the lake and P.T. followed by breakfast, formed the daily routine which was adhered to throughout the week in canvas.

The Scouts found especially interesting a visit to the Commonwealth Air Training School at Dunnville. Each boy was taken up into the control tower, and given a demonstration of how each instrument worked. Flying Officer Graves, on the ground, at the controls of a plane and explained the workings of the complicated dash board and cockpit equipment to those waiting their turn in the control tower. After two hours of sight-seeing the boys went into one of the repair shops, where they were given a close-up of a dismantled plane. In this way they were able to see all the parts of an aircraft and learn how it operates.

Wednesday and Thursday nights saw the camp in great excitement as the boys prepared for their overnight hike. Each scout, for this project, had to carry his own bedding and food. The trip took them to the lake shore, where they could watch bombing practice by planes from the Jarvis gunnery and bombing school.

Sports also occupied the Scouts, and Charles Schwab, thirteen years old, hung up something of a record by not only winning the junior long distance swim, but by taking into camp the seniors as well. He navigated a distance of three quarters of a mile. For the sports events, boys five feet or under were classified as junior, over five feet as senior.

David Dick, Carman Thorpe, and Douglas Bedford were first, second and third place winners in senior contests, while Charles Schwab, John Pasche and Leon Belzner won similar standings in the junior grouping.

The scouts had an excellent view of American bald eagles when they discovered a nest about a half mile away from the camp. Approaching the tree in which the nest was built, they saw two large eagles leave, giving the boys on the ground a good view of this interesting bird.

Scouting was not forgotten during the camp, however, and many of the boys availed themselves of the opportunity of trying out many of the tests. The swimmers' badge was won by Douglas Bedford, Andrew Fulton, David Rutherford, Ronald Phipps, David Dick, James Henderson and Charles Schwab. Charles Schwab, David Dick and Wilson LeDrew won their camp cookin' badge, and Wilson LeDrew won the coveted ambulance badge. Several of the boys passed tests for their second class badge, as follows: cooking and fire lighting—Donald Catton and Ross Johnson, first aid, Armand Koutnik and Michael Jarvis; Scout pace, Donald Catton, Ross Johnson, and Michael Jarvis.

BONES ROLLED AS LOOKOUT FALLS AWEEPE

African dominoes is the latest game to be taken up by local youth, and they are playing it with a vengeance!

A couple of weeks ago four young men decided to kill some of the long Sunday afternoon hours with a few friendly throws. They chose as their playing field a spot on Main street right under the post office tower. Citizens who did not like the set-up decided something should be done about it, and when Chief William Turner hove into view the boys were so intent on fiddling a seven that they failed to fiddle themselves. Numerous issues ensued subsequently resulting in cut-off-court settlement.

The game has its lure, however, for last Saturday night — pardon us, Sunday morning — Chief Turner was strolling along Main West when, from an empty street, he heard "ices. While he didn't actually hear the tumble of bones, he saw them being thrown by three men who had chosen the west doorway of the liquor store for their game. Across the road, unable to keep the late hours, slept another man who is believed to have been posted there as a lookout.

Town Clerk Given Leave of Absence

Town Clerk G. G. Bourne was last night granted two weeks' leave of absence, starting August 16, by the town council. During his holiday, Armand Hummel, assistant town clerk and treasurer, will deputize for the clerk, having the power to sign checks and other documents.

Sunday School Lesson

SUNDAY, AUGUST 16th

Isaac Practices Peace

Genesis 26: 18-21.

GOLDEN TEXT

Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God.—Matthew 5:9.

An introduction to The Lesson All believers are exhorted to seek the things that make for peace and the things whereby we may edify one another. Isaac, in his dealings with the quarrelsome Philistines, is a good example of this. In character the son of Abraham and Sarah was gentle and ineffective.

A Lesson Outlined

A chapter in Isaac's Life
Tested by famine (Genesis 26:1).
A divine command (Verses 2-5).
Failure because of fear (verses 6-10).

Reproached by the world (verses 10-11).

Deliverance through grace (verses 12-14).

Re-opening old wells (verses 15-19).

Jalousy and strife (verses 20-21).

Overcoming evil with good (verse 22).

Back to the tent and the altar (verses 23-25).

The enemy was by unchristianness (verses 26-31).

The Heart of The Lesson

We are told in Proverbs 16:7 that when a man's ways please the Lord He makes even his enemies go to peace with him. This does not mean that one's foes will cease to find fault with him, but it does mean that the man who so lives as to please the Lord will be blameless in his behaviour giving no just cause for fault-finding. The spirit of Isaac was the same as the spirit that Jesus taught — overcomers evil by good.

Housewives Are Urged To Use Substitutes Fats

Butter Production Down,
Bacon Going To Britain
And Vegetable Oils.

With butter production down, the bulk of Canadian bacon going to Britain, and imported vegetable oils becoming scarcer, thrift and skill are necessary to see that the Canadian family gets the proper fat requirements in its diet.

One third of the total calorie requirement comes from fats of some sort. Nutritionists in speaking of fats divide them into three categories: butter, all other fats, bacon and salt pork.

If butter consumption needs to be cut down it is important to save any bacon and pork fat available, and all kinds of dripping for use in the preparation of meals.

Housewives Urged To Save On Butter

Creamery butter production is down and to stimulate production the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has granted a producer's subsidy of six cents a pound on butterfat used in the manufacture of creamery butter.

It is pointed out that until butter production is built up Canadians should make every effort not to waste butter. Housewives are reminded that in cooking, other fats can frequently be substituted with equally good results.

Eureka!

The word "Eureka" is Greek, and means, literally, "I have found." It is translated sometimes as "I have found it." To cry out "Eureka!" means that a person has found something long sought, or has accomplished something after much effort.

Archimedes, the most celebrated mathematician and engineer of antiquity, was ordered by King Hiero of his native city, Syracuse, to ascertain the proportion of pure gold in the king's crown. After much thought, Archimedes immersed the crown in water and weighed the water displaced. The story goes that he was so excited he ran through the streets crying, "Eureka! Eureka!"

Archimedes lived in the third century before Christ and was killed by the Romans when they captured Syracuse. He invented the screw for raising water. "Eureka" is the motto of the State of California.

—Everyday Sayings

Time And Energy Savers Are Needed

Homemakers need more than ever to conserve time and energy to meet the growing demands made on them in their capacity as defence workers—saving and salvaging in every direction and giving up leisure to community war activities.

Although waste paper is needed for salvage, it will sometimes pay to use old newspapers and magazines or catalogues to lighten cleaning operations in the kitchen. Use newspapers on the work table when preparing fruits and vegetables and the garbage can be quickly cleaned and wrapped for disposal. Catalogues or magazine pages are a convenient size for wiping out utensils before washing, especially if they are greasy. Keep one within easy reach.

Fold all articles that do not require ironing as they are taken from the line.

Use trays or a small table on wheels or casters for setting and clearing the table.

Keep cleaning equipment such as dusters, and polishing cloths, whisk, cleaners and dustpan in a basket that can be conveniently moved from place to place.

Keep your kitchen knives and food choppers well sharpened.

Have your fuel box a convenient height to save stooping.

A work table that is too low for comfort can be raised with wooden blocks.

Tasty Sandwich Filler

For a sandwich that's health-protecting as well as appetizing, use a filler of meat, fat, eggs, cheese or peanut butter.

Is The Shower Passing Over?

Showers for the bride-to-be are coming in for criticism. It is quite true they are rather overdone, especially if the bride happens to be more than ordinarily popular. And at shower-time, anyone who has a nodding acquaintance with her, or who is a friend of a friend, is liable to an invitation (which really amounts to a demand) to shell out.

When you come right down to it, no bride in wartime needs all those little gadgets that are put over on her. Wouldn't she get much more enjoyment out of shopping for her own extras?

In the scanty space she is likely to have at her disposal, there is no room for unnecessary, for everyone knows what the housing shortage does to the home-making plans of the young couple; they are lucky to get even a room or two,—just a roof over their heads.

Why not club together and buy the bride a really good wedding present?

In The Year 1944

It now appears that H. V. Morton has been writing another book, but not one of the famous "Search" series. Nellie L. McCung has had the reviewing of it, and she calls it an alarming book but one that should be read by everybody. It is a small paper-covered book, called, I. James Blunt, and is the diary of a retired tradesman, living in England in the year 1944, in which he tells how it feels for an Englishman to live under Nazi rule. There is nothing in it, the reviewer says, that could not be true if the war goes against us.

The author dedicates his book to all thinking thinkers who believe that Britain is still an island, that Russia can do all that is necessary, and that we have only to mark time until the United States get busy. It further emphasizes that the scientific extermination of British nationality would be the first act of a victorious Germany.

It is a book, according to Mrs. McCung, that is guaranteed to shelter complacency as effectively as a bomb on the roof.

First Fruits

What a treat it is to go into the garden now. Something new and exciting happens every day! The exuberant growing season is over and the gardens have settled down to the business of maturing their vegetables and tree fruits.

Can anything equal the thrill of digging the first new potatoes for dinner, or cutting the first cabbage, discovering the first ripening tomato and bringing it in to finish on the window-sill!

Then there were the first early peaches to slice for tea, the first apples,—a trifle wormy, perhaps, but think of the delicious, thick applesauce they make.

From now on every day is a harvest day of peppers, egg-plant, summer squash, sweet corn, cauliflower, peaches and apples, to be followed by plums, pears and grapes. There may even be quinces this year, enough for three or four tiny glasses of jelly, just for a treat. And elderberries will soon be ready for pie.

Potatoes must now be dug, dried, and stored in the cellar. The best flower-beds must be saved for seed; and onions pulled and left to air, then put in baskets until the tops are dry enough to twist off. Roots must be cut off as soon as they fade to prolong the blooming season. And all the time the never-ceasing warfare on weeds goes on.

It is only the middle of August and we are already laying by in store the harvest of our victory gardens.

Chicory And Queen Anne's Lace

Lovely enough for a queen's presentation bouquet—but they look better growing in the vacant lot. There is a succession of flowers from spring until late fall in the particular vacant lot we know of (and this year someone has a potato patch in one corner, hedged around with corn), and all lovely in their turn. Now is the time for the unmatched blue of chicory, to which the swaying umbels of white-flowered Queen Anne's Lace set as a foil and background.

Mixed in here and there is a bit of late-blooming St. John's Wort. The proper time for this sturdy plant to come into bloom is just before Midsummer's Eve, June 23rd, which is also the Eve of St. John Baptist's Day, in whose honour the plant is named. For a good summer, be sure and gather a bunch of St. John's Wort for the house.

Even yet, in the remoter English countryside, it is gathered on the Eve of St. John's day, and hung at doors and windows against evil "wights." It was thought that the morning dew upon it preserved the eyes from disease. If a maiden accepted a plant as a gift, she watched it tenderly, for if it flourished she remembered that it was "the wonderful herb a wise fool will decide if the coming year will make me a bride." Hypericum perforatum officinale is its formal name. The word officinale affixed to a plant name always indicated that it was used in medicine.

In the season of midsummer, too, tufts of red, pink and white clover, beloved of bees, fill the lot with sun-warmed fragrance.

"The only medicine which does women more good than harm is dream." —Fletcher.

Christmas Cards

Sounds unmeasurable, doesn't it? Although we know that cards for next Christmas have already been designed and orders placed by the trade, we should like to offer a few pointers to the Canadian artists who design our Christmas cards that might be acted upon another year.

What about a series of Canadian flowers in their natural surroundings; another of trees; of Canadian birds; authentic rural and village scenes; churches (preferably small town and rural); Canadian children at play, at work, on their way to and from school, in the church choir? There's no end to the choice of subjects,—if they are suitably presented.

So far, most of the emphasis in the "Canadian Artist" series of cards has been placed on Quebec winter scenes,—bleak, frigid, cheerless scenes; poor little villages all but buried in mountainous snow drifts; nobody in sight but a decrepit old inhabitant huddled along smoking a pipe to keep warm, or a couple of huddled figures in a sleigh.

When these cards go out of the country, what a misconception they may give of Canada! It is sad to be wondered at that American tourists have been known to bring their skiing and toboggan equipment with them in July. Such an outfit was seen stopping in Grimsby one summer, not long ago, to enquire the way to the nearest ski-run. Neither can it be wondered at that the elderly lady in England whose son in Canada was pressing her to visit him for the holidays, whispered, "Oh, I can't go to Canada; there's nothing there but snow and hard work."

After all, there are other provinces beside Quebec. Why not look at the Maritimes, British Columbia, the western provinces, even Ontario, for suitable Christmas card material?

"What right have you, O passer-by-the-way, to call any flower a weed? Do you know its merits, its virtues, its healing qualities? Because a thing is common, shall you despise it? If so, you might despise the sunshine for the same reason.—Aben-

Our Weekly Poem

THE COUNTRY ROAD

The country road climbs up the hills
And ambles down the valley,
To left you hear the whip-poor-will,

To right the night-in-gales.
The country road is cool with shade
And calm with rural joys,

Unsuited by the shouts of trade,

Untouched by city noise.

At least that's how it used to be,
This sweet and peaceful land,
But now beneath the maple tree

They've built a hot dog stand.

A filling station lifts its head

Above the verdant grass,

And where the sprouting chestnut spread

The air is full of smoke.

The roadside of another day

Is now another kind,

For picnickers have passed this way

And left a mess behind.

The roadside that was strewed with flowers

Is strewed with empty cans,

Though Nature made the lovely bower,

The other marks are man's.

A Sunday paper blows around,
Some cake is drawing flies.
It looks more like a battleground,
Where Mother Nature dies.

And if I sought some tidy spot

To build me an abode,

I'd seek it up an alley, not

Upon a country road.

—By Douglas Mallock.

FRUITS SAVE SUGAR

Fresh fruits, just washed and piled in a bowl, are a delicious summer dessert. And they take no sugar!

Potato And Celery Croquettes

This is a recipe that can be used any day. It calls for 2 cups cold mashed potatoes, 1/2 cup finely chopped celery, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 egg, salt and pepper.

Beat the egg well, add the potato and mix well; then add the remaining ingredients, shape into croquette, dip into egg and crumble, and fry in deep hot fat until a golden brown.

Well-Balanced Meals Important To Better Health

Balanced meals are just as important as balanced budgets, according to Miss Marion Harlow of Nutrition Services, Department of Pensions and National Health. A well-balanced diet means better health for everyone and a more efficient war effort.

It's not so much what people eat for a particular meal that counts; it's what they eat during an entire day. Dinner or supper, or perhaps an evening snack, can round out the essential food requirements that may have been missed at other meals. One or two changes in a meal can often make it balance with other meals and conform to the rules for healthful eating.

Prunes are very good for breakfast, and rich in iron. But remember that they do not contain the Vitamin C found in tomatoes and citrus fruits. To supply this, fresh or canned tomatoes could be included in the menu for lunch.

Part of that half-pint of milk essential for grown-ups can be worked in by making coffee with hot milk, half and half, with a little cream added for richness. Served this way the beverage is nutritious and easy on your supply of rationed coffee.

RADIO SPOTLIGHT

We're still remembering Ginny Skinner, ex-Kyser vocalist, who made a guest appearance on the Charlie McCarthy program some time ago. In fact, it was on the final program of last year's series, just before Bergen and all the gang took a vacation for thirteen weeks. So let it be good news that Charlie's return to the air-waves is just a couple of week's away: the return date is set for Sunday, September 6th, at the usual time, 8 o'clock! Incidentally, the show is going to have a completely new production slant, but Ray Noble's music will still be there, as well as Bergen and McCarthy. Who the guests or co-stars will be is a matter of conjecture at this writing. However, it's a certainty that Sunday on CKOC, come September 6th, will be a greater broadcasting day, because the McCarthy program will again be on the air.

We've sort of coined a phrase for the coming broadcast season, and the opening gun sets off with the phrase "September on CKOC"! And quite fitting too—for during the first two weeks in September, CKOC welcomes back for 1150 kilocycles, the Happy Gang on Tuesday, September 1st; Penny's Diary, Friday, September 4th (a new evening by the way); Share the Wealth on Saturday, the 5th; the Good Deeders return for their Saturday morning fun parties at 9:45 on the 12th, and Dr. Hagen's True or False takes back its regular Monday 8:30 p.m. spot on the 14th. These top-fite National favorites will be supplemented with the station's most concerted local efforts, promising some truly outstanding listening for those who keep in tune with the 1150 spot on their radio dials.

Thus we invite you to be in tune with "September on CKOC".

How would you like to become a member of the exclusive "Mystery Club"?—one of those honored men or women who join in company each Sunday afternoon to hear the dramatized narration of some famous mystery story? Well, the actual locale of the Mystery Club is London, England, but radio has transcribed a few of their famous meetings, and the stories told, and CKOC will be broadcasting them come Sunday on CKOC at 4:30 p.m.; they're full half hour get-togethers, and the tales are many and varied, told by such outstanding members as famous doctors, plantation owners, scientists and diplomats. It's an unusual radio treat, and is another "September on CKOC" headliner.

In London, the Managing Director of a famous Agency, William Ferguson, found the BOB HOPE show "one of the clearest ways of picturing the tremendous scope of the American training program" in the war-bound British Isles. Hope's show has been stepping from one big centre to another, and each week's show is short-waved to Great Britain. "Andy" of Amos' Andy is the father of a baby girl. "The Voice of Firestone", Monday night song and fine music treat with Alfred Wallenstein's orchestra and the voices of Richard Crooks and Margaret Speake is the latest addition to the "radioed abroad" shows going from the United States. Five top-ranking music boys are collegiate fraternity brothers in Sigma Nu—Kay Kyser, Johnny Long, Griff Williams, Orvin Tucker and Glen Miller. That's the new-round-up for the week—more news of new shows, national and local next week, as radio's

URGENT APPEAL FOR RUBBER ISSUED FOR RURAL CAMPAIGN

Within the next few weeks, all patrons of rural post-offices and all rural boxholders in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec will receive a special printed message from the National Salvage Committee, in connection with the huge scrap rubber drive taking place from August 24 to September 8 in the rural sections of both these provinces.

A four-page printed card has been prepared for boxholders and residents, giving the details of the scrap drive. Carrying a list of questions and answers on the rubber drive for the benefit of ruralites, the card also contains a handy list of everyday household rubber articles that can be salvaged for collection, plus a list of the vital needs for which the salvaged rubber goods can be used.

A message on the card, from Hon. W. P. Mulock, Canada's Postmaster General, reads in part: "This is an urgent appeal to you. Canada's most pressing need is rubber. You have scrap rubber on your premises, such as old tires, scrap rubber hose, rubber overshoe, etc., —in fact, many things of which rubber forms a part—it can be used to great advantage to Canada's war effort . . . the rural post offices are giving their couriers, stage couriers and the wives free to help Canada meet this urgent need."

War Production May Suffer By Lack Of Rubber

By the beginning of 1943 the shortage of rubber may become so critical that its use for war and essential purposes may have to be curtailed, Alan H. Williamson, Controller of Supplies said recently.

As the only possible immediate answer to the shortage of crude rubber, Mr. Williamson urged every Canadian to re-double his efforts to dig out and turn in scrap rubber. He said the plan announced by the Post Office and the National Salvage Committee for collection, by rural post offices, and mail couriers in Ontario and Quebec, of all scrap rubber left beside the rural post boxes, or in the post offices, was worked out in cooperation with the Department of Munitions and Supply. "On the success of the plan may depend the success of a vital part of our war program during the critical year ahead of us," said Mr. Williamson.

The Canadian public has done splendidly in answer to the appeal made in May," he went on. "As a result, the reclaim plants are able to work at full capacity and a reserve stockpile has been accumulated. But it must not be forgotten that for the past eight months less and less crude rubber has been made available to the public in the form of tires and other civilian articles. This eventually will mean a substantial drop in the amount of scrap rubber which can be gleaned. It follows, therefore, that the reserves of scrap now on hand will not outlast the winter unless a very real effort is made to pile up still more scrap rubber."

M. Williamson pointed out that urban, summer residents and those in rural areas gather and turn in their scrap before the freeze-up, there will be no opportunity to do so until the spring or summer of 1943. "That may be too late," said Mr. Williamson. "The scrap rubber will be needed during the winter and it must be gathered now."

BABE RUTH TRAVELS BY T. C. A. TO EAST

George Herman Ruth, New York, read the passenger manifest of a recent flight of the Trans-Canada Air Lines plane terminating at Ottawa, and, true enough, it proved to be "Babe" in person, and not a picture despite his recent appearance in Hollywood. The former King of Swat and the Home Run Monarch came on invitation to assist at the inauguration of the new recreation centre sponsored by the Navy League of Canada and the one-time pride of the Yankees provided a one-man show whenever he moved into the open from his quarters in the Nova Scotian Hotel.

Home Appliances Need Constant Care In Wartime

Scrap Metal Pours In With Farmers Co-Operation

Western farmers co-operating with Western Canadian elevators are doing a grand job in collecting scrap metal according to reports reaching National Salvage Headquarters, Ottawa.

Less than a month ago the movement of scrap metal from western points was a mere trickle. According to officials of these country elevator organizations in charge of collection of salvage, more than 30 cars a day are moving to collecting centres. Over half of the 250 cars already shipped were loaded with materials brought to the elevators by the farmers of Saskatchewan. Source of the remainder was about equally divided between Manitoba and Alberta. There is every indication that the movement will increase.

Holidaying, if even for a few days, in camps or cottages without electricity makes housewives particularly appreciative of their electrical appliances at home.

Studies have proved that in laundry, cleaning and cooking alone, electricity saves seven work hours a week. Quite apart from convenience, this is good reason in busy days for an all-out campaign to conserve electrical equipment which is practically irreplaceable until after the war.

AN OLD CANADIAN CUSTOM

When our pioneer grandparents had a big job to do they called in their neighbours. A barn raising brought help from miles around. Skilled barn framers took charge; sides were chosen and competition between teams lent interest to the work. This old Canadian custom was revived when Canada's National War Finance Committee was formed and went into operation. Under the leadership of the National and Provincial Committees—men experienced in the organization and conduct of financial operations—Local Committees were formed in all communities. Co-operation and competition characterized the work. The biggest "raising" in Canada's history got away to a magnificent start.

WE'VE GOT A BIG JOB TO DO NOW

The War goes on. The National War Finance Committee carries on. Some will serve on the committees organized to promote continued sales of Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps. All of us must continue to buy these securities. We must save every dollar, every cent we can—and lend our money to Canada. We must provide the money required to carry on the war—the money required to win the war.

Our fighters must have more ships and tanks and guns and planes. They must have better ships and tanks and guns and planes than the enemy has. We must all work, and save and lend. The safest investments we can find for our savings are Bonds, War Savings Certificates and Stamps—and they will provide money for us to buy things that we will want when the war is ended.

Small Frog — Big Puddle

THERE used to be an old pre-war saw about not being able to see the forest for the trees, and as there has been no Ottawa regulation governing the use of old saws and pruners, this one is no doubt still good. At any rate, it sums up neatly this whole question of government regulations and the buying public.

For months, there has been a bewildering procession of orders to business and the public, coming out like the old Keystone cops from the tactical, one right on the heels of the other in a seemingly endless parade. There were the tire restrictions and the gasoline rationing, changes in time payments, the honor system for sugar, the shortages of beef and milk bottles, and now the coupons for tea and coffee. We accepted them all as fast as they arrived, realizing that if anything is to be regulated, everything must be.

Among the dozens of orders, there was one which interested us particularly around Grimsby because it rules on the pint fruit box. It seemed to us as very odd that this item, which we considered of more importance to the fruit-grower than to anyone else, should formally be placed by Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order within the jurisdiction and control of the Timber Administrator, A. E. Nicholson. It started this editor off on a one-man investigation of the matter.

What we have since turned up strikes us as of much greater public importance than fruit boxes and fruit baskets, vital as those are to this part of the country. But to dispose of the fruit boxes first. This same order covered all manner of fruit and vegetable containers ranging from regular, painted and metal top pint boxes to export-type straight-stake bushel hampers, utilized form cabbage crates, Quebec-style apple boxes, pear half barrels, experimental new wide-type 6-quart baskets, dirt crates with hand grips and tomato stakes. A shortage of the essential raw material here, which is timber, or haphazard use of available supplies, might have literally upset the applecart, penalizing the grower on price or distribution and even affecting the consumer to the extent of creating a nutrition problem.

But all this goes to show how easy it is to be wrapped up in detail and miss the broad picture. This one order fits into an overall pattern with the hundreds that came before and went after. The basic idea, of course, was to protect the consumer's dollar from the terrific man-handling it would have taken by now in wide-open, unrestricted dealings. Many of these orders appeared in the news of the Division of Simplified Practice, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and it had never before been clear, to us, at least, what this was all about.

The person of any price ceiling is keeping it there. Getting behind the scenes, we find that the Division is the trouble-shooting squad. In many essential items, the margin between cost and sales price gets slimmer and slimmer. That is when "the squeeze"—as the Wartime Prices and Trade boys call it—sets in. The job of "Simplified Practice" is to put the squeeze on the squeeze. This is done by finding smart ways to cut costs.

Here is how it works. It goes into an industry in many cases on that industry's own invitation. Usually, the industry is an aggressive one, anxious to be shipshape before there's a squall. Or if a subsidy has been requested, the Division works with the industry in view in seeking ways to avoid this. It is concerned with all kinds of materials and methods of using them. Where such materials, as in the case of rubber, are certain to be insufficient, the job is obvious. It is to spread what is available as far and as equitably as possible. In other cases, industries are studied to aid in releasing men or machines for purely war needs.

There are two approaches to the task in any given industry. One is to standardize the products which the public eventually buys off the retailer's shelf, by limiting the styles and designs, colors and sizes. The other is by simplifying the processes by which the goods are made and the ways in which they are distributed. Cutting the number of deliveries by wholesalers and retailers, for example, holds down the costs as well as saving gasoline and tires.

From the consumer's side, there is much more to this than merely providing the manufacturer with substitutes for materials that are growing scarce. By restricting the variety of dyes which can be used for men's socks, this means more socks go through a smaller number of dye vats and thus lessening of manufacturers' overhead again holds down costs to the consumer. Simplification of packaging means, among other things, that lower-priced lines are kept on the shelves and available to the consumer when they might otherwise disappear. The price of dish soap has been kept at fixed levels by sticking to two sizes of handles and using only plain yarn. Even women's hair has been simplified.

There are now thousands of such examples. In fact, they include almost every article on the shelves of every store in town. As manpower, machines and materials get scarcer and scarcer, the job of this Division gets more and more necessary, and more and more important. The standard of living in this community, as in all others in Canada has remained as good as it is, despite three years of war, because this Division is in action.

Following Her Father

THIS week another member of The Independent staff, the fourth in point of number, left this office to don uniform. The latest recruit is this time a woman, Allayne M. Silver, whose father is well remembered here from the time he served as foreman of the shop. Miss Silver is entering the Canadian Women's Army Corps.

Miss Silver, who has been associated in this office for the past several months, showed a distinct flair for newspaper work, and her happy manner made her many friends, and brought her into close contact with those from whom she sought "dope." It is probably safe to venture that she will, when she comes out of the service, have material for some excellent stories. The material, with her interesting manner of putting them down, should be worth reading.

No More Gas For Model T Fuels

NOW that shortages, bans and restrictions are the order of the day, there is still one more field which could profitably be treated to a strong dose of strict regulation. This covers the miscellaneous feuds, controversies and squabbles which, though they may add spice, and some excitement to peaceful living, can well be spared for the duration.

High up on the list of such unnecessary struggles is inter-community mud-slinging. It is hard to imagine any brand of rivalry between two neighbouring municipalities which, at this particular day and date, justifies one Canadian community throwing caustic punches or tossing editorial bricks at another. To be specific, editors in Ontario have long watched Port Erie attacking Thorold and Thorold's largest industry, which makes newspaper and has done so for over thirty years. Why Port Erie should be the headquarters for this bitter and long drawn-out campaign against a neighbour has never been clear. Why sister municipalities should engage in a crusade to cut employment and hamstring a nearby industry is also a mystery since, if it succeeded, the taxpayers of Port Erie would be among those to receive a break-taking punch in the backroll.

This innocent bystander's suggestion to Port Erie is to call off the name-calling and let Thorold conduct its own affairs. And as a broad principle, let's agree to cut out the gas ration for all Model T fuels till the end of the war at least and also shut off the hot air supply for the same purpose.

Lack Of Planning

THESE is an important business firm in Canada which has paid out over four hundred dollars in advertising for a key man who was "called up" under the manpower mobilization regulations. This man had an important job to do, but after several weeks his company has been unable to replace him.

A Canadian woman, the mother of several young children, was suddenly stricken and passed away. There were no funds with which to bury her. Relatives now have the children. The deceased lady's husband is overseas, and his army pay did little to provide for more than the living costs of his large family.

These are but two examples of how loosely organized manpower regulations are wrecking morale and providing Canadians with more headaches than the actual war itself. The father of these young children should have been retained at home in one of the numerous war factories, where his contribution to the war effort would be just as great or even greater than it is now that he is overseas, and his children are the responsibility of other people. The company which lost its key man is doing important war work, and it is not hard to visualize parts of our war effort lacking because of his drawing $1.20 per day in the army.

What our government failed to grasp is that there is a place for everybody in the prosecution of the war. No man with several children should be overseas when there are single men still available. Properly planned mobilization would overcome situations such as this. Men and women would know that at whatever they are working they are doing what is expected of them.

More important than this, however, is the effect such a program would have on the people of Canada generally. With every citizen sure in his own mind that all other citizens are serving properly, there would be more enthusiasm in the prosecution of the war, and the unfortunate conception to me, which hangs over this country like a dark cloud, would never have arisen. In some respects our opponents are skilled professionals who allow us no handicap.

Town, Township Enlarge Soldiers' Plot; Pay Jointly

Provision for the perpetual care of graves in the Queen's Lawn Cemetery in which rest the remains of veterans of Empire wars was discussed by Mayor Eric Johnson and Councillor Henry E. Bull at last Saturday's meeting of the North Grimsby Township Council. They also proposed that the plot, which was set aside in 1920, should be enlarged from its present size of one hundred and twenty-eight graves, at a cost to be shared between the town and township on a basis of the town paying two thirds of the cost.

At last night's meeting of the Town Council, approval was given to the plan and the Cemetery Committee was empowered to secure the additional land. The cost is estimated at $6,000, of which the town would pay $4,000. The burial ground is to be available to veterans of both municipalities.

NO APPRENTICES

The Brantford Expositor

Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, says only sixty-six men were available to fill 3,562 vacancies for skilled tradesmen at Chicoutimi, Quebec. This is part of the legacy left by national failure to maintain the apprenticeship system back in depression times.

MENTAL LIBERATION

Hans Kohn, professor of history, Smith College, from the Christian Science Monitor.

The war, if we win it, will be won only by the intensification of our spiritual energies, by a co-operation of nations as never before, by unremitting effort against lethargy and prejudice. It can be won only by more democracy, by its realization on a wider basis, by the application of its originally universal message. To future historians, Hitler may appear as an instrument that woke us up from lethargy and made us face the unprecedented challenge to which we have to find the response. It is the privilege and the dignity of our generation to meet the challenge.

THE VALUE OF FREEDOM

From "Common Sense"

by Thomas Paine

These are times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of his country, but he that stands it now deserves the thanks of men and women. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered, yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly. 'Tis dearest, alone, that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to set a price upon its gifts; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated.

Plane Makers Gather Rubber

Working full time making planes for the air forces of the United Nations, men and women aircraft workers at Fairchild Aircraft, near Montreal, have spent their spare time in another all-out job to help beat Hitler. Setting themselves an objective of 10 tons of rubber, workers ransacked basements, garages and vacant lots and brought in 20 tons. Setting up a scrap rubber dump right on the premises helped the drive because workers knew where to leave their scrap and that it would go direct to salvage. On the left two hard-working girl salvagers show off their morning haul and on the right is a section of the Why? . . . Distance!

The New York Times

THE real test of our war production, in short, is not statistics, but results. And judged by results, our war production is still woefully inadequate. We are still on the defensive on every battlefield on which the armies of the United Nations are engaged. Why? Distance and the difficulties of transportation, together with the superior preparations of the enemy, of course tell most of the story. But is our failure to achieve a larger measure of success also due to other factors?

Is it because, though we are producing tremendously, we are not producing the right things? Is it because we have not clear-cut conceptions of our own strategy? Is it because our strategy is still uncertain improvised, or lack of proper organization under a unified command?

It is easier to raise such questions than to answer them. But they are enough to indicate that there is no simple formula for victory. It is a formula made up of a great complex of ingredients—courage, balanced production, inventive genius, good generalship, well-trained military forces, boldness and brilliance of grand strategy, unity of command. Not by citing our progress in any one respect, can we feel confident of success. It is only by drawing on all our resources—and concentrating them with the utmost effectiveness that we can make victory sure.

Publicity Has Its Value

Wilton Times And Guide

IT is pointed out that war comes which have no goods to offer to the public continue to take advertising space with business prudence. All wide awake firms know that it would be fatal for them to let their names pass from the public mind for any length of time even if they have nothing to sell. If they were to drop their advertising at this time they would soon be in the ranks of forgotten men. Some years ago, remarks the Montreal Mercury, there was a proprietary medicine that was known from one end of America to another and which branched out into other lands. In large advertising space in the newspapers its merits were set forth in well-chosen terms and on the roofs of barns and other similar places and on billboards the virtue of the medicine was loudly proclaimed. The owner of the remedy had a million dollar castle on the Thousand Islands and palatial estates in New York and the Adirondacks. He spent money freely because there was no end to the flow that rolled into his coffers from practically every drug store in the land. There came a time when he tired of business and sold out his interests to a corporation. The manager of this corporation conceived the idea that he could profit by the advertising which had brought wealth to his predecessor. It was decided to drop all advertising and to add the vast sums expended in publicity to the general receipts of the company. This policy was adhered to for three years and at the end of that period the business of the corporation had shrunk to such proportions that bankruptcy was in sight. The corporation made a futile effort to regain its former prestige by again entering the advertising field only to find that it had been supplanted in this direction by wiser companies. With sales at a minimum this once formidable corporation found itself in bankruptcy and whatever merit the remedy had it was lost to the public as it was soon altogether withdrawn from sale.

"Fixing Bayonets" Out

The Montreal Star

EVERY once in a while someone has a disarmingly simple idea that contains the seeds of revolution. The world gasps, then wonders why somebody hadn't thought of it before. Its utter simplicity, the sheer common sense of it, astonishes. Even in the military field this sort of thing happens every once in a while, and it has happened recently.

Time was, and not so long ago (to use the story teller's formula), when in some regiment a soldier's smartness was judged by his ability to fix and unfix bayonets as a drill movement without dropping either rifle or bayonet or stabbing another soldier. He was known how to set a price upon his services; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated.

But that day is over. Recently there appeared in orders this phrase: "Men will learn to fix bayonets in their own time and not as drill movements." At long last someone has discovered that a soldier should put the bayonet on the rifle when he needs it. It's as simple as that, but it is perhaps the most revolutionary thing the military mind has ever thought of.

"When I say 'Fix,' you don't fix. But when I say 'Bysta,' you whipe 'em out and you whope 'em on."

"Now then . . ."

TATARNIC — WISNOSKI

The marriage was solemnized at St. Mary's Church on Saturday afternoon, August 1st, of Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wisnosi, of North Grimsby, and Edward Tatarnic, Thorold, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tatarnic. Rev. Walter Shek, St. Catharines, officiated, while the choral response were led by Peter Baranuk, of Grimsby. Fours and flowers beautified the church for the occasion.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sisters, Jane and Helen Wisnosi, Grimsby, and Stella Tatarnic and Olga Almies, of Thorold. She was beautifully gowned in rich white satin brocade, with long train, and carried a prayer book with spray of orchids. The bridesmaids wore pastel frocks with hats to match, and colonial corsages.

Supporting the groom was Joe Ananychuck, of Thorold. Walter Hallinan and William Wisnosi, Grimsby, and Demetrio Dolinski, Walter Tatarnic and Peter Ivanetz, of Thorold, acted as ushers. The marriage was witnessed by about 50 immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties.

At the reception held in St. Mary's Hall in the evening some 200 guests were received by the parents of the bride and groom. A handsome three-tiered wedding cake, each tier upheld by cupids, was one of the highlights. Music added to the enjoyment of the evening.

The becoming gown worn by the bride's mother was of blue chiffon, while the groom's mother was attractive in blue silk crepe. Both wore corsages of pink roses.

After the reception, the young couple left by motor car for Quebec, returning in two weeks to make their home in Niagara Falls, Ont. The bride's going-away frock was white, with red and white gingham trimming.

Guests were present from Detroit, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines, Thorold, Fort Erie, and Preston.

This Was Rubber Scrap

Old tires and rubber articles end up here—ready to make Canada's armed forces roll more rapidly towards Victory. The rural rubber drive in Ontario and Quebec, August 24 to September 8 gives everyone a chance to make this heap of military vehicle tires pile up even higher!

East Meets West As War Rulings End "City" Conveniences" For All

Horse Is Now Worth Weight
In Rubber As Clock Turns
Back 25 Years

"People on Ontario farms don't live so very differently from city people," an enquiring reporter from the west was told recently. "In the east most of the farm people get daily deliveries of bread, regular delivery of meat and sometimes of groceries. But of course the war is changing all that."

The picture, of course, is different on prairie farms, the reporter pointed out. There, communities are scattered and the farmer has to drive many miles to the nearest town or community store for supplies. He has not been able to combine town and country life quite so pleasantly.

Investigation showed, however, that war regulations are making east and west meet on the common ground of daily living. True, many eastern farms have the comfort of electric light, unknown on most prairie homesteads, but no longer will they have the same number of food deliveries.

The clock is turning back 25 years for many rural housewives, who once again will have to bake the family's bread; take meat from the milk barrel or cut it from a frozen carcass. As formerly she will have to get her provisions once a week or possibly less frequently, depending on when the farm truck has to make a journey into town.

The fall of Singapore has brought back the horse and buggy days because rubber was formerly imported from the far east and now it must be saved, like gasoline. Trucks can no longer be used for unnecessary errands and gasoline restrictions do not permit of daily errands into town. All someone has said "a car is now worth its weight in rubber."

The restrictions on deliveries put into effect by the War-time Prices and Trade Board in the interests of economy as well as of rubber and gasoline conservation, affects the lives of both town and country people it is pointed out. Country women must now do more cooking at home, but at least they are helped by having much of the food they use available on their own farms. Women in the cities, accustomed to many store deliveries daily, must now travel in overcrowded street cars to get their supplies, or leave their children with a neighbor while they go to the corner shop.

However, according to the War-time Prices and Trade Board Consumer Branch, Canadian women have proved by their co-operation that they are prepared to do everything they can to help along the war effort. They only need to be told what is necessary and they undertake to do it.

Be yourself—simple, honest, and unpretending—and you will enjoy through life the respect and love of friends.—Bennigan.

TAIL-WAGGER

SIMPLE AILMENTS OF DOGS

A Bitch In Time

By PHILOKON

The old proverb about a stitch in time saving nine is as applicable to dogs as it is to most of the affairs of life. Another adage worth following is "don't put off until to-morrow what can be done to-day." That dog owners are often unobservant is evident from some of the thousands of letters asking for advice that reach the Tail-Wagger Club headquarters at Willing House, 354-360, Gray's Inn Road, London, W.C.1. We do not grudge answering any of them because that is one of the responsibilities that we have undertaken and we are always glad to do our best.

As these Chats reach a wide public it may not be out of place to mention a few of the simple ailments from which our dogs may suffer. Some of these can be nipped in the bud by prompt treatment. It is a useful thing to examine dogs at the daily grooming, looking inside the ears and mouth, and watching for any signs of scabies on the skin. Unfortunately, they are unable to disclose the seat of the trouble unless it happens to be where they can bite, scratch or rub. Then there is no excuse for overlooking anything that may be wrong, though carelessness is to be seen occasionally. I was in a house recently in which the domestic pet showed all the characteristic symptoms of cancer of the ear — carrying the head on one side, shaking it and scratching.

"Do stop it," exclaimed his mistress, "you give me the fidgets."

"You are the one who ought to be scolded," I replied, and showed her the inflamed condition of the inner ear. If this had been treated at the beginning a little horsecam powder dropped well in and worked down into the canal by manipulation.

Wounds to the feet should be cleaned, touched with a little tincture of iodine and then bandaged. Inflamed claws are very painful and cause lameness. If very bad, position should be used, and then paint them with tincture of iodine.

My Dog

He's my dog—

Four legs and a tail,
A reckless vagabond out of jail.
Just a lotta dog, no pedigree.
All kinds of branches on his family tree.

Shoe-button eyes, nose too long.
Makes your head ache when he sings his song.

Wild and woolly, likes to run away.
Knocks you down when he wants to play.

Is fond of "reading" with gloves
and hats,
Tears up flower beds and chases
cats.
Sleeps all day—eat like a hog.
Absolutely worthless—but,

He's my dog.

LEND A HAND!

ONTARIO INTER-DEPARTMENTAL COMMITTEE — AGRICULTURE —
LABOUR — EDUCATION — AND DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR, OTTAWA

Thousands of women who have never seen the inside of a canning factory are being asked to spend the next six to eight weeks lending a hand to preserve food for Victory!

Bountiful Ontario crops of fruit and vegetable must be saved as food for Canada's armed forces, for our allies and for our families. They must be preserved promptly in the hundreds of clean, well-organized canning plants of the province.

The seasonal type of work, usually available to canning factories have been absorbed almost entirely into year-round war jobs. This leaves Ontario food processors desperately short-handed unless local women will leave their homes for a few weeks to lend a hand.

So act now! Get some of your friends together and volunteer your next few weeks to your local canning factory for this bigger job. It's a very necessary war job that's as useful, as pleasant and as patriotic as the making of munitions, and the job will be over for this year in about two months. If further information is required, write Farm Service Force, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

Black Beret Army Put Through Paces At Camp Lorden

The Black Beret Army, peculiar, outstanding in Canada's fighting forces, takes the spotlight in training at Camp Lorden. The average "tanker" goes to Camp Lorden equipped with little else in the way of ability than the will and enthusiasm to do his fighting with the Canadian Armoured Corps. But within as little time as four weeks he learns much, including the fact that hard work and study are essential.

For two weeks the Armoured Corps man practices driving and maintenance, for a high standard driving efficiency is necessary. The modern tank is a different proposition from the old slow-creeping tank of World War I, that travelled between two and four miles an hour. Today's gigantic battle wagons can go thirty miles an hour; some types seventy-five miles per hour.

The initiate finds during these two weeks that maintenance of tanks is highly specialised, must be performed often and rigidly. For after a tank has done approximately 100 miles it must be maintained, including refuelling with petrol, oil and water. Also, the crew must refuel their own bodies because the great heat they sustain inside a tank necessitates that each man consume a gallon of water a day.

After qualifying in driving and maintenance the tanker-soldier will take at least a two-week course in gunnery. This phase of his training is highly specialised and his efficiency must be as nearly perfect as is humanly possible. Every shot must count. For the

In these grim days when every effort must be made to conserve materials and manpower for defence, nothing is too old or worn to be still useful.

Men's shirts make children's slips, boys' sports shirts, dress covers, handkerchiefs, aprons, pot holders. For the last, stitch cuffs together and hang by the button holes.

Men's pants make one pair of shorts for a six-year-old and one pair for a two-year-old.

Cotton housecoats or dressing gowns will make two or three dresses for children from two to six years.

Night gowns will make slips for either grown-ups or children, nighties for the latter. Felt hats make children's slippers, flowers for applique on wool frocks; children's skull caps.

One-piece frocks in which the sleeves are gone can be re-made into bolero and skirt, and with a blouse added, give the equivalent of a "new" costume.

Tank 4, which he will fight is probably limited to about 90 rounds of ammunition per gun, 1250 rounds per machine gun.

Next, if the recruit has the aptitude, he will enter a class on radio and wireless which will occupy him for two months. He finds that the Armoured Corps, like all other Arms of Canada's fighting forces, is not all glamour but ninety per cent hard work.

The successful Armoured Corps fighting man must be rugged, able to take the bumps and possessed of a perfect set of nerve reflexes. His initiative must be of the best. He must be able to chart his own course, unaided, across strange country. He must have the genius to take original action at a split second's notice, for things happen fast when the vicious, hurtling tanks of World War II search each other out.

To The Editor

August 2nd, 1942.

The Grimsby Independent, Grimsby, Ontario.

Dear Bob:

I should have written you before now, but they've been slapping the work at us pretty hard, and there's not much spare time.

Anyway, thanks very much for the "Independent". It's certainly appreciated.

Every Friday afternoon I take a lot of kidding from the rest of the boys in the room for "devouring" the paper from cover to cover but I guess I'm just a small town boy at heart.

Thanks again and the best of luck to you.

Yours truly,

Wally Smith.

Town's Employees Receive Increases In Their Salaries

Third Boost In Pay In Year And a Half — Chief Constable To Receive Same Wages As Treasurer After Split Vote.

Another increase in the salaries of the town employees was granted by the Town Council at its meeting held last evening. Under the new schedule of wages, J. M. Lawrie, the town superintendent, is to receive $27 per week, while town workmen are to receive 45 cents per hour. The town treasurer, Val Thistle, is to receive $25 per week, and a similar salary was voted to Police Chief William W. Turner. J. M. Keenly, the cemetery supervisor, also receives $25 per week.

Voting on the matter resulted in unanimous vote in all cases except that of Chief Turner. Councillors D. E. Anderson and A. M. Alton opposed the increase in this case. Chief Turner's salary was $23 formerly. All the increases are as of July 1.

This marks the third increase which has been granted town employees within the past year and a half. On March 12, 1941, an increase was voted, and another was made on September 18 of last year.

Obituary

JOHN RUSSELL

Mrs. William Handa, Main Street, has been advised by telegram of the death of her only brother, John Russell, in Graveney, Vancouver, B.C.

John Russell was a printer, having learned his trade in the pressroom of The Independent, joining the staff as a lad of fifteen. Owing to poor health he left The Independent and went to Manitoba, staying with relatives on a farm. Later he was back in the printing business, this time in Carmen, Man., going on from there to Winnipeg where he was engaged for several years in newspaper work. His next move was to Virdwood, and employment there by the Massey-Harris Company, and finally his connection with printing at home.

The late Mr. Russell was in his fifty-eighth year, and leaves one son, Max, with whom he lived, and a daughter, Jean, a nurse in Graveney. His wife died in 1926.

To The Editor

To the Editor,
Grimsby Independent.

Reference letter to the Editor in your edition of Thursday, May 21. The answer to the first sentence is "NO"—Definitely "NO".

Possibly from a physical viewpoint, the writer, in quoting the Medical Association Journal, is right. BUT—the writer should be over here in order to appreciate just what a good smoke means to one. After all there is a WAR ON and there is no shadow of doubt but there is also a shortage of tobacco in this country. Also, what tobacco one has to purchase here is not of a quality that can come anywhere near the fine product of our own country. Then again, all the cigarettes sent to the "boer" over here certainly do not arrive—generally due to "enemy action."

Chewing gum—well, (insofar as that item is concerned), I have seen several cases in my career in the army where men have been "put on the peg" for chewing gum. Yes, in a lot of instances, it is an offence. No doubt, chewing gum has all the virtues suggested, but it can never take the place of a smoke to settle the nerves.

The nature of the letter published in the 21st May edition would, in certain branches of the army, be treated as sedition—in that it has a tendency to create unrest among the troops.

Insofar as I am concerned, I say "Thanks A Million" to all the good Grimsby folk who have contributed toward the purchase of cigarettes received from your different organizations, by myself, and I further reiterate "Keep 'Em Coming."

Dear Sirs:

Have just received the June copy of your newspaper along with another carton of cigarettes from the Grimsby Chamber of Commerce, and thought it was about time I showed my appreciation by letting you know that I have enjoyed them both and am certainly grateful.

The paper has been getting here quite regularly, apart from two or three copies that got lost between here and there.

It certainly has been great getting the home town news and reading about how folks we know are really shoving things along on the VICTORY DRIVE.

And I wish to thank the people of Grimsby who through the Chamber of Commerce have been sending me and the rest of the Grimsby boys over here, the gifts of cigarettes. It's impossible to let you know on paper how they are appreciated, a few drags on some of the litany fags would give you a knowledge.

Things are very quiet now compared to a year ago, when the sirens were blowing every night and Jerry was coming over fairly steady. Our training is getting a lot together, getting more like the real thing. I guess most of the boys within was it's been a long time since we left home and we haven't had our crack at the blighty yet, but maybe our chance will be here soon. Here's hoping any "wind" that's a million to all at home.

Yours gratefully,
Pte. F. G. Ballard.

At Moore's Theatre

As invented with sound, plus

Mariette Dietrich, John Wayne, Randolph Scott, Margaret Lindsay and a first-rate supporting cast.

Rex Beach's saga of Alaskan gold rush days stands the test of time in this, its third version. The colorful, claim-jumping story has what it takes in action, spectacle and romance, and there are solid production values at every way stop.

The cast fits like a glove, with Miss Dietrich in an audience-tested role—shrewd, seductive and quick of lip and leg — where the management of her Nome gin palace is concerned. But where Wayne is concerned—well, it's a slick performance as she fights to hold him over the succeeding wives of Miss Lindsay — "front" for the phony "judge" and crooked gold-commissioner Scott, who try to get control of Wayne, and Harry Carey's rich mine. The dialogue is crisp, modernized, yet embracing what sounds like native characteristics.

Far and away the show stopper of the entire effort is the fist fight at the end between Wayne and Scott.

It's about the bruising brawls of fists that has come off a sound track and will merit the plaudits of critics and patron alike. It's perhaps one of the most remembered and detailed sequences of its kind in all fiction and comes off just about as it was written.

Clear telephone lines for ALL-OUT PRODUCTION

Your telephone is part of a vast interlocking system now carrying an increased wartime load. Don't let needless delays hold up messages on which production efficiency may depend.

- 1. BE SURE you have the right number... consult the directory.
- 2. SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouthpiece.
- 3. ANSWER promptly when the bell rings.
- 4. USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9:30 a.m. 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

These things may seem trifling, but as 6,300,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.
